

AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE

National Youth & Militarism Program

1501 Cherry Street
Philadelphia, PA 19102
(215) 241-7176

The American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) is a Quaker organization which includes people of various faiths who are committed to social justice, peace, and humanitarian service.

Making soldiers in the public schools

An analysis of the Army JROTC curriculum

An American Friends Service Committee Report

Catherine Lutz & Lesley Bartlett

Acknowledgements

We would like to thank Harold Jordan for his tireless efforts over eighteen months in helping this paper come into being. It could not have been written without his assistance. We are also grateful to Sam Diener, Cynthia Enloe, Michelle Fine, Brenda Funk, Rick Jahnkow, Tony Prete, Judy Reed, Susan Segall, Paul Socolar, Robin Templeton, Thu Tran, Leslie Watson-Davis, Reginald Wilson, and Tamara Xavier for their highly detailed and intelligent comments on earlier versions of the paper. Thanks to Linda Rocawich for editorial assistance. The San Diego-based Project on Youth and Non-Military Opportunities (YANO) played an invaluable role in helping us obtain materials.

Publication of this study was funded by a grant from the Town Creek Foundation to the American Friends Service Committee.

Research and Editing: Harold Jordan

Book Design: Wendy Kanzler, Tiger's Eye Design

Cover Illustration: Michael Brown, Luke Krill, Wendy Kanzler

Requests for permission to reprint should be submitted to the American Friends Service Committee.

About the Authors

Catherine Lutz, Associate Professor of Anthropology at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is the author of Reading National Geographic (with J. Collins), Unnatural Emotions, and Language and the Politics of Emotion (with L. Abu-Lughod). She received a Ph.D. in social anthropology from Harvard University in 1980.

Lesley Bartlett is a graduate student specializing in educational anthropology at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She has a degree in education and has taught in the North Carolina public school system.